UVSub Outdoor/Indoor Aluminum Signage

UVSub Aluminum come in White Gloss Only in various sizes and shapes. These are made of .045 Aluminum with extended UV Protection to prevent fading.

This was the first company to tout UV stability in the name, so we decided to test it out ourselves. Although the manufacturer claims it is not rated for outdoor use, we have successfully installed one on our loading dock installed in January 2016 facing south east and it still looks good.

We would say from our own testing that there is roughly a 2 to 3 year life span before noticeable fading will occur. The blacks are just starting to turn brown after 2 1/2 years. Honestly the general public would probably not even notice on our test as of right now. We do as we have trained ourselves to do so.

Indoor Aluminum Signage

Regular Aluminum come in multiple colors and can be cut into various sizes. These are made of .020 to .030 or .045 Aluminum. While they have a some UV protection they are not rated for outdoor use, but can be used in some locations for a limited time as temporary signage.

We use aluminum a lot for interior signage, wayfinding signage, slide in sign holders, name badges, etc.

While we do our own testing at times we would say that using the white material only outdoors there is roughly a 1/2 year to 1 year life span before noticeable fading will occur. All depending of course on the location. Indoors indefinitely as long it is not in direct sunlight all day.

Special Note: gold, silver, bronze, copper will fade too quick and is not recommended for any length of time outdoors.
